* First: Cost center type

Second: Profit center
* First: Profit center

Second: General ledger account
* First: Cost center type

Second: General ledger account
The functional area is always automatically determined with cost center type as the first priority, followed by general ledger account.
This is according to the SAP.com study resources (https://training.sap.com/shop/course/sap-fi-cost-element-accounting-tfin52-en/).
The cost center type is determined first because it is the most important piece of information that can be used to assign costs to a cost center. The general ledger account is the second priority because it specifies the account to which the cost element is posted.
